

To whom it may concern,

I am currently a student studying psychology, and it is because of the internship that I have enrolled myself into the course. I wish to do the internship because I want to get more on hands experience offered by the 4+2. This is not about getting a good grade or low grade, it is about what is suitable to me and many other students that wish to become a registered psychologist.

This is really unfair to students that have already enrolled into psychology, trying to pursue that pathway.

Thank you, and I hope my feedback would be of significance. I would be very unhappy for this pathway to be dismissed.

Warmest regards,

Thaddeus
